mall White Child in Henrico County Most Cruelly Murdered. ,

THE LAND-GRABBER SUITS

One Who Was in the Business Years Ago Wants His Land to be Grabbed.

The body of a murdered white infant was found yesterday morning in Cedar Street, on Cheisen Hill. Around its neck was twisted and knotted so tightly, as to cause the face to swell and the tengue to protrude, a rope, which had evidently strangled and choked the small being.

Absolutely no clue exists that might possibly lead to a detection of the perpetrators of the dastardly crime. There was nothing about the little body to identify it. It was lying in the street, identify it. It was lying in the street, enclosed only in a gunny-sack. The Henrico authorities have taken the case up, however, and are working vigorously over it. A coroner's jury met yesterday afternoon at the courthouse, but was adjourned over until to-day, when there may be some further developments. An investigation as thorough us the baffling circumstances will permit will be made by the coroner.

circumstances will permit will be made by the coroner.

Following so closely upon the murder of the negre infant, who was found dead in a well a short while ago, and for whose murder two negre women were indicted on Monday, this fresh case of infanticide has caused considerable of a stir in the county. Commonwealth's At-torney Wendenburg said yesterday that it was his experience as a lawyer of lone practice, that a crime in a community is almost invariably followed within a rea-senable time—six or twelve months—by almost invariably followed within a rea-scrable time-six or twelve months-by-another of a character almost identical. When asked for a possible cause for so remarkable a fact, he declared that it must be due to suggestion. The murder of an infant by strangulation, for in-stance, suggests to somebody who is per-bags at that time contemplating a simplishing it. Mr. Wendenburg said ne had hardly ever known it to fail. A dastardly crims sets the pace for others, and the Henrico infanticides are but a new indication of the truth of this observation.

The board of supervisors met yesterday and spent the day paying bills and transacting other routine business.

The members of the board expected to hear something from ex-Treasurer Brauer who has now wound up his affairs and closed his office at the courthouse, but he did not appear. A special meeting will be called shortly, at which time Mr. will be called shortly, at which time Mr.
Brauer will give a final rendering of his accounts. The examinations of the books of the outgoing treasurer, which was delayed on account of other business that occupied the time of Mr. Boudar,
the special accountant, will now proceed.
It is expected that the examination will be completed very shortly.

A proposition for the opening of a road
from Broad Street to the Three Chop will also be considered at the special

A striking instance of the disgust of a A striking instance of the disgust of a lond-grabber for his own trade has come to light. Some years ago a well known gentleman advanced a small capital and united with several others in buying up delinquent property. He went into the deal in the supposition that the company was to take up only such abandoned lands as had been left by Northerners who had come here and then gone off. But after awhile ha found that this was not the case. He was besieged by widows, old men and others, who said he had secured their property, and who reasurer of the county happened to be

The custom house yesterday was a howling wilderness, so fair as news of any description is concerned.
